		the benefit is admissible, till the beginning of the corresponding benefit period. If contributions were paid/payable for not less than 78 days in the said contribution period, medical benefit is admissible till the end of the corresponding benefit period. If the insured person is in ESI coverage for at least 2 years, and contributed for not less than 156 days, and is suffering from any of the 34 specified long term diseases, the medical benefit is admissible till the incapacity lasts or for a period of 3 years for self and family.
48.	How a temporary or casual employee who works for 3 or 4 days and leaves the employment is entitled to the medical care?	If he leaves the employment before his registration process is completed, the employer may provide him with a 'certificate of employment' consisting of his date of employment, date of leaving, family particulars etc. in form ESIC-86. Based on this certificate, that person and his family can avail 'medical benefit' for a period of 3 months.
49.	How to get medical benefit when an insured person is leaving for another station for a temporary period?	While leaving the station, the insured person may obtain a certificate of employment from his employer in ESIC-105, and carry the same with him along with his identity card. Based on this, the insured person can avail the medical benefit in any ESI Dispensary/Hospital across the country.
50.	If the insured person's family is residing in another place in the same State or another State, how the family can avail the medical benefit?	If the family is residing in any other place either in the same State or different State, based on the declaration of the insured person and certified by the employer, the family is provided with a 'family identity card' for receiving medical benefit from ESI Dispensary in the area in which it is residing.

Who and when? When? I will report an accident report to the branch or to the ESI Bureau in question immediately in relation to accidents that may result in the death or disablement of the official within 24 hours of its occurrence. N o © It is necessary to report minor accidents that do not cause absence from work. How and when the occupational injury occurs, report accidents within 48 hours on the ESIC Portal Form a 12 What information do you need to include in an accident report? Contact details you will first need the details of the injured party; you need to collect as much as possible only if you may need it. Then you will need the casualties first and last name, phone number, e mail address, home address, sex and date of birth. So you need some details about why they were on site and whether they were an employee or a member of the public. Once the injured party has filled in their details, the person filling in the form will need to add their contact details to the record. Next, you will need to gather some information about the own accident and the damage it has caused, bring down the date of the accident, the time and location (try to be as specific as possible, for example, in what department or floor was the person?). All the details of the slug will need recording; This can help ensure that you give the injured party proper treatment if you collect sufficient information: Type of injury suffered, burning, bruising, fracture? What part of the body was wounded? Did the victim demand resuscitation or hospitalisation? Was the victim ever unconscious? How many days of work has the employee lost due to injury? Did an ambulance have to move the plane? If a witness was on site, take the details and see if they will provide a written statement to support your cause.
